1 | Introduction

Sustainability and transfer of results and experiences from the partnership was main aim of the mainstreaming strategy. Each participating institution has contributed to the dissemination of the project and shared their knowledge with other partners via meetings, visits, emails, chats, discussion boards.

For the transfer strategy ideal synergistic effects between scientific orientated institutions, organizations for project and structure development and practical orientated institutions was possible through the involvement of different project partners that complement one another. The selection of project partners and the consideration of different language and cultural background offered the chance of a wide transfer of the project results in other EU countries. The national and European networking structures of the partners contributed to the efficiency of transfer.
